Deadly Gas Takes Toll of Two Lives International Mine

Georgia Lothian and John Lebdik killed by gas. Deadly fumes of methane gas early Saturday morning.

FIRE-BOSS WALTER NELSON
NEARLY SHARED SAME FATE

Inquest adjourned till Monday next when Nelson will give evidence of circumstances of fatality.

The actual circumstances surrounding the death of George Lothian and John Lebdik, the two miners killed by gas in the International mine in the early hours of Saturday morning last, and the rescue from the brink of a similar death of Walter Nelson, fire boss, by a rescue crew some hours after in the gas-laden sector where the fatality occurred, will not be cleared up till Nelson appears before the coroner's jury on Monday next, as the opening of the inquest last Monday, he was not sufficiently recovered from his harrowing experience to give evidence. He is progressing very satisfactorily, though he feels the loss of the men very keenly, for whom he was responsible. Various surmises have been made by mining men of long experience, one of which is that Nelson was first overcome, and that the other two in an effort to save him lost their lives.

The first intimation of the tragedy which had been enacted in that distant portion of the mine beyond York Creek was at 8 a.m. on Saturday. The men from other sections of the mine, who had gone on shift at midnight, Friday, the same time as the unfortunate trio, and with whom they were laughing and chatting as they prepared to go to their respective sections, noticed as they assembled previous to leaving for home, that Nelson, Lothian and Lebdik had not appeared. Thinking that they were delayed, the fire boss and some of the men were ordered to remain and after a half hour of suspense a rescue party was sent out to explore the section of the mine where they were known to have been working. As it is a considerable distance from the mine head, some went by the underground route, while others went overland to York Creek to enter the entry. They were possibly 1000 feet in, and the first sign of the party was the light of the electric lamp of Lebdik, while a short distance further in were the bodies of Lothian and Nelson.

son, the first two dead, and the latter with a faint streak of life. Immediate steps were taken by the first-aid men to resuscitate them by the aid of the pulmotor and artificial respiration, and they nobly worked on all three, but the two miners were too far gone, and they were pronounced dead on the arrival of the doctor. Nelson's life was in the balance, but eventually he was restored to consciousness, though it was a considerable time before he was in condition to be moved from the mine.

In the meantime rumors of the tragedy had been circulating throughout the town and anxiety was very acute: The worst fears of there having been a loss of life were confirmed when the truck bearing the bodies of Lothian and Lebdik, wrapped in grey mine blankets, proceeded through town to the mortuary, shortly after 2 p.m., and later Nelson was removed to hospital. Quite a large number of friends and acquaintances of the dead miners followed the truck and stood with bared heads as their bodies on stretchers were carried into the funeral home.

The irony of the fatality is that only a few feet of space separated them from fresh air and life, but so quickly must the deadly methane gas have overcome them that they were unable to travel those few steps which would have brought them out of the way of the poisonous fumes.

Not till Saturday evening, after he had sufficiently recovered from shock, did Nelson hear of the death of his comrades, and it was a bitter blow to him. As to how they met their death he did not know, for he remembers making an attempt to reach fresh air himself, and trying to get to a chute, then he was overcome. He felt that he was trying to pull a heavy load, that he was trying to fight something, he stated, during the time he lay in the cold depths of the mine, and that on being brought back to full consciousness he felt very cold. By Sunday he was well enough to return to normal, but remarked that he felt very stiff and sore as a result of the work of the first-aid men in performing artificial respiration. He was thankful to be alive, and could not express his appreciation of the splendid work of the rescue crew, though perceptibly upset that the other two had died.

Nelson has over twenty years of

Saturday's Victims of Mine Tragedy Working Partners Who Perished Together

Parents Live in Lethbridge

Lothian, a fine type of miner, with a fair record in the Seaford Highlanders, came to Hillcrest in 1920, and to Coleman in 1922, working for the International Coal Co. Since married in 1923 to Caroline Lardinois, a Coleman girl, he leaves besides his wife, two young boys, the one four years and the other two months old. His grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Porteous, live at Hillcrest, having celebrated their golden wedding a comparatively short time ago.

He was a life member of Lodge St. Mary, Colliess No. 31, A.F. & A.M., Wishaw, Lanarkshire, Scotland. He was one of the most enthusiastic members of the Rod and Gun Club. He was a fine type of miner citizen whom all admired, and was 30 years of age.

Came from Slovakia

John Lebdik came to Canada from Slovakia 21 years ago, and most of the time has worked at the International mine. He leaves to mourn his death his wife and two boys aged eight and four years. Lothian and Lebdik had been working partners in the mine for a considerable length of time, and it is unlikely the tale will ever be told of their underground struggle to escape from their death trap.

Lebdik had only recently re-commenced work in the mine after being away during the summer at a farm he purchased at Ghost Pine Creek, and it was his intention after putting in the winter in the mine, to take up farming permanently in the spring. He was a member of the Slovak League here.

Big Attendance at Funerals of Lothian and Lebdik Tuesday and Wednesday

The funeral of George Lothian, victim of the gas fatality in the International mine, was held on Tuesday afternoon at Summit Lodge, A. F. & A. M., Lethbridge, the pallbearers, they being W. Houghhead, J. C. Cox, Neil McFleming, J. Russell Ewing, J. Mackie, P. Haggerty, the latter two from Hillcrest Lodge, and a number of officers and members from Hillcrest.

W. Houghhead, president of the Canadian Legion was represented by J. Hadley, Wm. Smith, W. Graham, J. Yates, Noah Davies and J. Hill.

The Mine Workers Union of Canada was represented by the local officers and nearly all the men who were not on shift, and the various organizations marched to the home of the deceased, where the funeral service was conducted by the Rev. H. D. Bevan, of the United Church. A large number of relatives and friends of the family from all parts of the Pass, together with his parents and brothers from Lethbridge were present.

At the conclusion of the service, members of the Canadian Legion wrapped a Union Jack around the coffin, and the procession wended its way to the cemetery, where following the committal service by the minister, the coffin was lowered, Legion members holding the spread Union Jack, while Bugler J. Low sounded the last Post.

Under the worshipful master, Thos. Flynn, the members of Summit Lodge A.F. & A.M. performed their services for the departed, singing the hymn "Days and Moments Quickly Flying," concluding the ceremony by dropping in into the grave sprigs of acacia, in accordance with ancient rites.

Beautiful floral tributes were sent by the following organizations: United Mine Workers of Canada, Summit Lodge A.F. & A.M., Coleman Rod & Gun Club, and from the following relatives and friends:

Wife and family, Father, Mother and Brother, Kenneth, Father and Mother Lardinois, Alex and Alice, Charlie and Mary, J. Anelot and family, L. Fassina and family, Mr. and Mrs. Fauville Sr., Mr. and Mrs.

IN MEMORIAM

Jimmy Taylor Has Close Call

Endeavoring to straighten a cable on hoisting drum nearly cost his life

In trying to straighten the wire rope on a hoist at No. 3 Entry in the McMillivray mine about 6 a.m. yesterday, J. Taylor's hand was caught. He was whirled around three times, being held by three fingers of the right hand and cut and clean. He was alone, but two timber jacks came along and helped him free the mine. He retained consciousness, stating at hospital last evening that he felt faint after reaching the mine washhouse, where he smoked a couple of cigarettes. Later examination revealed a broken rib in addition to bad bruises and cuts on the face and body.

HUNTERS FIND ANIMALS VERY WARY IN THE NEARBY MOUNTAINS

Andrew Dow and Alberta Sapta report game very difficult to get at owing to deep snow in the mountains, and were unsuccessful in their trip last week. On Sunday Wm. Wilson, J. Hogan and W. Collins went out around Crows Nest mountain and Wilson got on the track of a bear, and after trailing him for a considerable distance, had to give up the pursuit owing to approaching darkness. He also sighted a fine elk, but it proved too elusive for him to get a shot at.

HOSPITAL NOTES

Luke Lindoe is making progress following an operation in hospital, and expected to return home this week.

Canada On Easy Street

Hon. James A. Robb, Dominion Minister of Finance, is credited with the recent comment, "Canada is on easy street," when making announcement last month that even before due date, the Treasury had paid off $22,000,000 of the $33,000,000 short term bonds falling due on October 15, last, and that the balance would be paid on due date out of cash on hand in the Treasury. Even so, said Mr. Robb, there would be "some left over," and he had reason to hope, "If Providence continues kind to us and gives us good crops, and business keeps just as good as it is now, without even getting any better," to take care of further maturities coming along from now till 1933.

In other words, out of current revenues and without having to resort to the sale of further loans, Canada was able to pay off $33,000,000 of its public debt the year. And this does not represent the full amount of the debt reduction that has been effected this year, with a consequent lowering of the interest burden.

In the short period of six years the public debt has been reduced to an extent that a lessening of the burden of interest annually in an amount of almost $15,000,000. And if Mr. Robb's expectations for the next five years are realized an equal large, or even larger, amount will be lopped off by 1933.

The most gratifying feature, however, is that this substantial reduction in debt and in annual interest charges has been achieved, not as a result of increased taxation, but concurrent with a general decrease in taxation, including lowering of tariff schedules, a lighter tax on business profits, reductions in the sales tax, smaller income taxes, reduced postage rates, smaller stamp levies on cheques, and the abolition of stamp duties on receipts. In a word, the removal of restrictions on the business of the country has been helpful in the development of business, and, as a direct consequence, larger revenues to the Government.

Another important factor has been the really phenomenal improvement in the management and finances of the Canadian National Railways as a result of which the Dominion Treasury is no longer called upon to pay out huge sums to cover operating deficits and in interest to the account of railway bonds and debentures. On the contrary, the C.N.R. now accumulates an ever increasing surplus to apply on its past obligations to the Government.

The year now drawing to a close will, it is confidently expected, disclose a record year in the history of the Canadian National Railways, while President Beatty is authority for the statement that 1928 will, in all probability, prove to be the banner year in the history of the Canadian Pacific.

A perusal of the press of Canada, and particularly of all financial journals in which are recorded the annual reports of the banks, trust, loan, mortgage and insurance companies, and all the large manufacturing and industrial concerns of the Dominion, discloses the fact that one and all are enjoying great prosperity, enormously increased business and substantial profits.

No one circumstance can be credited with the whole responsibility for this magnificent advancement, although it is safe to say that the great grain production of the West, coupled with the betterment in the life stock industry, the increase in dairying, and other branches of agricultural production, form the background, and is largely responsible for the general speeding up in the whole business of the country, and is occasioning the transfer of other lines of industry from the East to various centres in the West.

The general betterment is the result, as Mr. Robb frankly recognizes, of a beneficent Providence without whose aid all man's efforts must come to naught. It is due, also, to the courage, industry and enterprise of the Canadian people, and to some extent to the steady improvement in world economic conditions, inasmuch as Canada is dependent so largely upon its export trade.

Present conditions are, therefore, good and sound, and future prospects are very bright. It remains for the people of Canada to take full advantage of the situation, not to rest on their ears, but to plan and work in order that our rosy expectations for the coming years may be fully realized. Every reduction in the public debt, every dollar saved in interest charges, every item of taxation lowered or wiped out, means further relief to all people and a further incentive to still larger development and growth. It is, therefore, to everybody's advantage and gain to work together in national co-operation.

West Coast Fisheries

The pilchard reduction industry on the west coast of Vancouver Island records an advance of 50 per cent. in production this year as compared with last, with an output of 16,000 tons of meal, and 3,500,000 gallons of oil. Within the past three years the number of plants have increased from five to 22.

A Delicate Operation

Eye Is Successfully Grafted On Person Who Regained Sight

One of the most delicate operations known to medical science proved at least partially successful when Bert Ferguson, of New York City, once blind, looked dimly at the world through another man's eye.

Ferguson's one eye had suffered several years ago and doctors, in an effort to restore his sight, decided to transplant the cornea from another eye.

Charles Greenbaum, whose eye was removed because of a tumor, offered to be the source of the cornea, still alive, was removed and grafted to Ferguson's member.

The medical world awaited the result anxiously and there was great interest today when the bandages were removed.

Ferguson was able to distinguish objects ten feet away. Surgeons said the development of sight and the permanent success of the operation would depend upon the ability of Ferguson's optic tissue to nourish the cells of the grafted cornea.

WHEN YOUNG GIRLS GROW PALE AND THIN

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Should Be Taken To Enrich the Blood

When girls grow pale and thin, parents should not be afraid to seek medical advice for these symptoms: to do so means danger. The girl in her teens cannot develop the robust, well-nourished blood an abundant supply of rich, healthy blood veins. It is the lack of this that is the great trouble with nine girls out of ten. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have a remarkable worldwide fame for their remarkable blood-making properties. In these pills there is vigorous health, with glowing cheeks and sparkling eyes for every weak, pale girl. The use of these pills for this kind of trouble is shown by the statement of Mrs. Winifred Ratty, Burton street west, Hamilton, Ont., who said: "About two years ago my oldest girl got the measles. I took her to a doctor who advised her to have the tonsils removed, saying this was the cause of the trouble. We removed them, but it did not help her, and she seemed to have absorbed so much poison from the trouble that she did not pick up at all. She could not sleep, and what food she did take did not digest. She developed a cough that kept her awake at night, and went down in weight to 95 pounds. A neighbor said to me, 'You have got so many things wrong that you try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.' I got some and before she finished the second box she began to feel improvement. She continued the use of these pills for some time and is now in the pink of condition, able to work and play, and eat and sleep with all her old-time vigor. These pills are particularly liked by neighbors who watch her recover from ill health to perfect health."

If your medicine dealer does not keep these pills you can get them by mail at 50¢ a box from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Tourists to the capital of British Columbia this year numbered 870,000, according to the Victoria Publicity Bureau. Tourist travel from Canadian points and from the west coast of the United States to Vancouver Island and Victoria, via the C.P.R. and the steamship service, shows an increase over last year.

The population of Greater Vancouver has increased by more than 106,000 in the past ten years, approximately 46 per cent. in the last four years, according to statistics contained in the local directory. The population is given at 344,100 against 317,185 in 1927, and 253,000 in 1924.

British Market Is Large

Canada Might Send Greater Supplies Of Farm Produce

The Farmers' Sun says: "Great Britain imported dressed poultry to the value of £1,204,702 during January to August, 1928. Towards that amount Canada contributed poultry to the value of £11,978. During the same period Great Britain imported eggs (in shell) to the value of £10,902,385. Canada supplied £24,923 worth."

Canada's contribution in this instance is increasing rapidly and could be greatly extended. As regards butter the comparison is even more striking, as for the period January to August, 1928, the total imports were valued at £37,411,498, to which Canada sent butter valued at £13,658. Agricultural produce in large quantities is being supplied to Great Britain by foreign countries, including the United States of America, which shipped dead meat to the value of £11,922 during the eight months mentioned.

Major Burwash To Carry On Investigations in Arctic Regions

In the bleak and frozen reaches of Canada's Arctic regions an intrepid and experienced explorer of the department of interior will labor during the long winter months, collecting valuable data and otherwise add to the knowledge of conditions among the wards of the Dominion, the Eskimos. The investigator is Major L. T. Burwash, of the Northwest Territories and Yukon branch who early in June of this year left Ottawa on his distant mission.

Following a long trip to Akavik in the delta of the Mackenzie River the explorer conducted a preliminary survey of that country before proceeding to the Arctic proper.

According to wireless reports received from a government station in the North, Major Burwash now has established his winter base on Boothia peninsula, from where he will carry out his investigations around King William Island, and on the mainland.

A survey of a proposed tractor route between Cochrane and Wager Bay will also be made. This project is being investigated with a view to ascertaining the possibilities of bringing in supplies for posts on the Arctic coast by way of the Hudson Bay and overland by tractor, rather than by the present long and hazardous route through the Behring Sea and the Northern coast of Alaska.

In May, 1929, Major Burwash will sail northward on the government auxiliary schooner Ptarmigan to investigate navigation conditions in the Franklin Strait and Peel Sound. He plans to join the annual Canadian Arctic expedition in the summer of 1929 with which he will return to civilization.

A chicken hatchery on a large scale is to be established in Alberta, according to L. M. Giesat, a member of the firm of Canadian Hatcheries, Limited, of Vancouver, and a recent visitor to Edmonton. He stated that the plan of the company was to establish, eventually, hatcheries at several points in the province, where there is unlimited scope for baby chicks of high quality strain; also for eggs and poultry.

DIRIGIBLE BEST POSSIBILITY FOR OCEAN FLIGHTS

Ottawa, Ont.—On the success of the projected flight of the dirigible E-100 from England to Canada next spring will largely depend the future of inter-ocean air communication. Air Marshal Sir John Salmon, M.C.E., stated in an interview here:

The distinguished British air official spent the day in Ottawa on his way home from Australia and called upon Hon. J. L. Ralston, minister of national defence.

"The dirigible appears to offer the best possibility for ocean flights at present," he said. "The future will probably see multi-motorized aeroplanes capable of making such flights with safety, but for the next ten years the lighter-than-air machine seems best."

Australia was anxiously awaiting the result of the projected flight to Canada, he continued. A flight would later be made from England to the Antipodes via Egypt.

Proposed Wool Pool

Alberta Wool Growers May Organize On Co-Operative Marketing Plan

Edmonton.—Wool growers of Alberta who are proposing to organize a co-operative marketing pool on lines similar to those of the Wheat Pool, moved one step nearer that end at a conference with Premier Brownlee at which advice was sought and given on the question of procedure. The meeting, which was a continuation of one held some weeks ago, was attended by representatives of five co-operative selling organizations among the wool growers in different parts of the province.

If and when a wool pool is formed, it will be on a contract basis, like that of the wheat pool, instead of the voluntary basis on which the Alberta growers are now marketing through the Canadian Co-operative Wool Growers Association. Details of the proposed new plan were discussed, including especially the contract terms and Mr. Brownlee addressed the wool men as to how an effective organization might be built up. It is likely that definite action will be taken in the near future.

Prospect For Further Reduction In Taxes

Increase In Revenue Makes Cut Next Year Probable

Ottawa.—Prospects for further substantial tax reduction next year are said to be improving with the increasing receipt of revenue collected by the customs department. In September the customs receipts showed an increase of over two million dollars over September, 1927. In October the customs receipts are said to be up by over three and half millions.

The seven months collections from customs are up by over seventeen and a quarter million dollars. Despite rapid reductions in the last budget, a percentage of the increase is due to the bigger percentage of collections of money due and a curbing of customs dodging.

The October excise collections will probably show an increase of over three-quarters of a million over October, 1927.

The excise taxes are down about fifty thousand but this is credited to the substantial reductions in the tax itself which this year amounted to 25 per cent. The net increase for the seven months, however, is nearly three and three quarters millions.

All government departments are said to have been instructed to prepare their estimates carefully, and this is now being done so that with an increase in the revenue even under reduced taxation and a decrease in the expenditure further tax reductions will be included in the "1929 Budget."

New Zealand Elections

Government Forces Under Premier Coates Receive Setback

Wellington, N.Z.—Prohibition was defeated by a majority of around 100,000 votes and the government forces under J. G. Coates, prime minister, suffered a severe setback in the election.

Prohibition was on the ballot in the form of a referendum as to whether a licensing system should be adopted. The vote was overwhelmingly against continuance of prohibition.

A new united party under the leadership of Sir Joseph Ward made its debut by gaining seats from Premier Coates party all over the Dominion.

The final standing by parties was: Coates, 23; Union party, 26; Labor, 20; Independents, 6.

Most of the Independents are opposed to the government. The premier's party failed to gain a single seat. It held 53 of the 80 seats in the last parliament.

The new united party combines Liberals, Nationalists and others opposed to the reform and Labor parties.

Three ministers lost their seats: A. D. McLeod, minister of lands; O. J. Hawken, minister of agriculture, and J. F. Ralston, minister of justice.

Stoneman, Saskatoon, president of the United Farmers of Canada, Saskatchewan section, and Dean W. J. Rutherford, head of the College of Agriculture at the University of Saskatchewan.

Public sittings of the Royal Grain Inquiry Commission will open at country points in Saskatchewan during the first week in December and will be continued as long as is necessary to enable farmers to present their cases.

Lava Flow Diminishing

Natives In Mount Etna Region Meeting Changed Conditions
Giarre, Sicily.—With the lava flow from Mount Etna diminishing hourly in intensity, natives of the stricken region are gradually reorganizing their economic life to meet the new conditions that nature has forced upon them.

There was some talk of tunnelling through the lava which has spread over the road as soon as the molten stream cooled and its flow subsided. This would restore the severed railway to normal service. One of the most radiant over the diminution of the lava flow was Leonardo Patane, whose age is 100, and who is known as the "Grandpa of Numerous." This aged centenarian was steadily fused to hedge from the threatened village. He proclaimed to all and sundry that he would be the last to leave. Now he is exhibiting a broad and toothless grin, saying "I told you so" in Sicilian dialect to all visitors.

The October excise collections will probably show an increase of over three-quarters of a million over October, 1927.

The excise taxes are down about fifty thousand but this is credited to the substantial reductions in the tax itself which this year amounted to 25 per cent. The net increase for the seven months, however, is nearly three and three quarters millions.

PLACE FOR THIS DOMINION IN EMPIRE AFFAIRS

Montreal—A willingness to share the responsibilities which in the earlier stages of Imperial development Britain bore alone in the obligation which Canada and other Dominions would be ready to meet for their development in the British Commonwealth of Nations.

This is the message which Sir Austen Chamberlain, secretary of foreign affairs in the British government, left with the people of Canada before he left Montreal for Quebec, en route to England.

"There is room in our Commonwealth," said Sir Austen, "for the fullest development of Canadian nationality."

"We welcome your co-operation in all fields, and not least in the field of foreign affairs; but now that you claim, and rightly claim, a place in the field of foreign affairs, you must study them. You must take an interest which will make your papers afford you all the information necessary to enable you to form a judgment and you must be willing to share the responsibilities which in the earlier stages of imperial development we have had to hear alone."

"We shall welcome your assistance and even your criticism. But let it not be criticism only after the event, but a real partnership in forming the decisions."

Search For Small Continues

May Use Steam Shovel To Dig Remains Of Missing Millionaire

Toronto, Ont.—Patrick Sullivan, special agent for the Misses Small, sisters of Ambrose J. Small, missing millionaire, may secure, is it said, a steam shovel outfit from Bolton, Ont., to excavate the Rosedale dump where both Sullivan and Dr. Langamer, criminologist, believe the remains can be found.

Sullivan anticipates that the work of excavating the dump will cost in the neighborhood of $5,600. Despite previous assurances that he had abandoned his enquiry into the disappearance of Small, Langamer will return to Toronto from Montreal for further work upon the world-famous mystery, it is learned here.

"I have been in touch with Langamer and he tells me that he will be back here at work on the case before the middle of next week, perhaps before," Sullivan said.

May Move Weather Bureau

Headquarters Of Department Likely To Be At Ottawa

Ottawa.—With the retirement of Sir Frederick Simpson, director of the meteorological service of Canada, on January 1 next, it is expected that the headquarters of his department will be removed from Toronto to Ottawa. The growing service of the bureau to navigation, forest fire fighting, the work done by the Department of Marine and Fisheries and, more recently the aeroplane traffic together with the fact that all the other important branches of the weather service are located here, are given as the reason for the change.

TRAGIC STORY OF SINKING OF LINER VESTRIS

New York—Two shiploads of survivors of the Lamport and Holt liner "Vestris" arrived here, unfolded details of one of the most horrible of marine disasters.

An official inquiry has been ordered, based upon their almost unanimous charges of inefficiency, indecision and delay against Captain William J. Carey and his crew.

Interspersed in narratives of heroism—and of cruelty—of narrow escape and long-suffering invariably appeared assertions that if proper steps had been taken by the ship's executives and crew, most, if not all, of the 108 now dead would be alive.

Even with the S.O.S. call too long delayed, efficient handling of the "Vestris" life-saving equipment by those responsible would have brought most of the 108 out of danger, declared survivors.

"Those are charges which United States Attorney Tuttle announced he will begin to investigate.

But Captain Carey probably had his reasons. He will never tell them. For forty years he had sailed in Lamport and Holt steamers. He "came up" through the "footsteps" as the sailors say, starting as a deck boy, advancing to ordinary seaman, then an able seaman, and finally "winning his ticket" and putting on the gold braid of an officer or the line.

When he took the "Vestris" out of port he was the ranking master of the Lamport and Holt fleet.

Two days later he stood on the bridge and knew his ship was gone. For the first time in his life he was at sea. Captain Carey gave the order to abandon ship. He never had lost a boat before. He stood at the rail and directed the mates as they had the boats lowered away.

He saw two boats loaded with women and children first—the first two boats to be put over-side. He saw them capsized and crumpled in the smoking seas.

He saw other boats get away safely with men from the passenger list and members of the crew aboard them.

He saw Lionel Licorish, a gigantic negro from the Barbados, leap into the water and save 16 people by pulling them to the sides of waiting life-boats. He saw Archibald Bannister dive overboard and drag into a full load of 22 persons. He heard women scream and saw men quake with fear. He saw human life fade out around him.

And all the time the first ship he had ever lost was settling deeper into the sea.

At last all were gone. One boat remained by the ship's side, a place in it for Captain Carey and another for Mike O'Laughlin, his chief radio officer.

But those were never taken.

Carey probably was the last man who saw O'Laughlin alive. That gallant officer was last seen still at his key near the master's bridge, and the hiss of the radio's spark was still mingling with the hiss of the seas which lapped upon the settling decks. O'Laughlin probably leaped into the sea and was sucked down by the ship.

But this to Carey—40 years with one line and this his last disaster—was the end.

Bent beneath his tremendous burden, he stood at the rail, the survivors said, as the water reached up for him and his ship.

There were lifebelts and life rings all around him—the things might have saved his life.

Carey chose the course which many another tried deep water sailor chose. He leaped into the sea and as the vessel went under water Captain Carey went with it—a dead skipper going down with a dead ship still in command.

SUPERB COURAGE OF RADIO MAN BEYOND PRAISE

New York, N.Y.—The work of Noel O'Laughlin, radio operator of the ill-fated steamer "Vestris," places him among the immortal heroes of sea disasters, in the opinion of veteran seamen and radio men.

O'Laughlin, a young Irishman, under 30, and little known here, was according to survivors of the tragedy on the Carolina coast, one of the last to jump from the liner but he undoubtedly was lost.

Lieut. Elbert C. Rogers, communication officer of the naval operating base at Old Point Comfort, has this to say of the "Vestris" operator:

"His courage and his coolness to my mind were superb and beyond any precedent. Had he been less courageous than he was doubtless more of the unfortunate number of lives lost would have been saved.

"It is for all of us to revere his memory. I know the navy deserves him."

Chief Radio Man B. N. Harris, of the naval radio station at Hampton Roads, a veteran of 16 years, said this:

"Only a man who has been in trouble at sea can understand just what O'Laughlin accomplished. There was not a radio operator anywhere who did not realize long before the "Vestris" went down, just what a magnificent stand this fellow was making. He worked under the worst conditions and came pretty close to accomplishing the miraculous."

"God, how cool and level-headed he was with everything against him. I don't know of anything like him in my experience."

Time elements vary in the stations here as to when O'Laughlin first sent out the SOS signal and when he closed up, but a fairly accurate estimate is that he started a few minutes after 10 o'clock Monday morning and stuck to his key until water began to pour into the radio room about 1:20 that afternoon. At no time, say the local operators, was the "Vestris" man excited or frantic. An indication of this was found in the last message he sent as recorded by the navy, at the naval operating base. Some reports had him making a somewhat heroic finale, but the text shows nothing in the words themselves. The last O'Laughlin message read:

"Abandoning ship. V. A."

In radio shorthand "V. A." means simply "I have nothing more for you."

The name of O'Laughlin will be inscribed on the monument in Battery Park, erected to the memory of wireless men, as one who kept the unwritten law of the sea by sticking to his ship until the end. His will be the fifteenth name on roll of honor. One of the first is Jack Phillips, the radio operator of the "Titanic."

Mulch Paper For Plants

Found Highly Efficient In Increasing
Production Of Farm Products

Remarkable success has attended the utilization of mulch paper, recently developed by the International Paper Company, which has greatly increased the production of varied farm products, in some cases as high as five hundred per cent. Mulch paper is laid on the ground between the plants, or, alternatively, the plants are placed in the soil through the holes made in the paper. It has proven highly efficient in stifling weed growth and preventing rapid evaporation of soil moisture. The dark colour of mulch paper attracts solar heat and increases the temperature of the soil.

For a short interval the noble animal held his majestic pose, then swaying awkwardly, he disappeared from view. At the sharp crack of the rifle the man by Donald's side winced as though the bullet had passed his own flesh. Brushing the sleeve of his coarse Mackinaw shirt hastily across his eyes, he muttered a curse, then turned and ran with stumbling steps to his waiting team, mounted the seat and clucked gently to his four horses. The big animals strained against their collars. The huge load moved slowly at first, then gathering momentum, rolled swiftly up the road.

Gillis brought five cayuses to the rear of the station and in a few moments his practised hands loaded two of them with their luggage.

The small cavalcade moved up the dusty road to the lead. They overtook and met numbers of freight wagons going in and out, the drivers shouting greetings to each other in foreign tongues. They passed the track-laying machine, which was throwing the heavy rails about as if they were matches in giant hands. Guards stopped them without the zone of flying debris while giant blasts rent the air as some titanic monster had torn the earth asunder. Huge rocks soared above the trees, then crashed to the ground with sickening thuds, while small pebbles spattered about them. Through the trees they saw a cloud of steam and smoke. The air was shrill with incessant quick steam-whistles as a huge steam-shovel growled and tore like a ravenous monster at the gravelled hillside. Four men bearing a stretcher came slowly down the trail. A man on horseback, wearing riding breeches and leather leggings, rode in their wake.

"How are you, Doctor Paul?" greeted Gillis. "Is it a serious accident?"

"They fell on him. Broke both legs, and he is hurt internally—I won't live," said the doctor in a low voice.

Donald grieved the fact the sufferer showed signs of life, though his head, bloody bandages frayed to the crimson-stained tips, from which issued the gurgling groans of agony. They moved on in silence for a few moments.

"When people ride in trains," observed Gillis, "there ain't one in a thousand that knows what it costs in sufferin' and lives to make it so they can ride in comfort."

By mid-afternoon they came to the vanguard of the army of workers, the men who were clearing the right-of-way. At intervals they could hear the long-drawn cry of the choppers as the top of a giant tree shivered and fell with a great rending crash felt to earth with a resounding roar. Here they came to the end of the new road, and with a feeling of relief they plunged into the cool shadow of the virgin woods. After the great clamour, the forest, through which the trail wandered deviously, seemed steeped in primal calm. The roar of the blasts no longer came in definite crashes, but was smothered by the distance to a muffled rumble.

A rider jogging down the trail reined his horse and shouted a cheery greeting, in true Western style. He was a clean-shaved, alert young man, with a frank manner and seemed elastic with the sword-drawn humor of outdoors. He swung easily from the saddle and introduced himself.

"My name is Wilkinson. I am the District Ranger. It's getting a bit dry in spots, so I want you to be careful about your fires."

When Douglas told him the object of their trip to Summit Lake the Ranger smiled apologetically.

"My warning was unnecessary, then. I took you for a party of campers. I'm following the construction work, so will probably see you again before long."

He mounted his cayuse, waved his hand in farewell, then galloped down the trail.

The narrow path wound around the bases of enormous trees towering high above them, some of the tallest being nearly two hundred feet in height. Gillis appraised them with a critical eye. He was thinking of them as logs, calculated in terms of board feet, but over Donald their beauty and nobility cast a strange spell. How long had these monarchs enjoyed the repose so soon to be broken by puny man? Probably some of them were good-sized trees when Columbus discovered America.

The solemnity of the forest was at times broken by the sharp "ka-a-a-a-h" of startled deer as they caught their scent, or the sudden hum of wings as big blue-grouse shot up from their path.

The horses pricked up their ears and snorted in fear as a bear crashed through the deep woods.

As daylight faded in the forest and twilight made eerie shadows on the dusky trail, they swung to an open space on the banks of the flowing Cheesakau River, and made camp for the night.

At daybreak they began the upward climb, and by noon felt the buoyancy of the air in the higher altitude.

They crossed rushing streams and skirted the shores of small lakes on whose waters rested flocks of ducks in gaudy rafts-like formations. The cayuses with their enormous packs showed signs of fatigue, and Gillis called frequent halts as the trail gradually grew steeper.

"We are nearly there," cried Doug, as eagerly.

A few minutes later they topped a heavily wooded hill and swung in to a narrow path on their right. There was no need to guide the horses, as they knew here were rest and food for them.

There was a sudden quickening along the line. Donald's horse broke into a run, with Andy's close behind, the latter holding to the rear of his saddle and making a wry face.

"I knew 'ow to keep this here bridle saddle from comin' up and hitting me in the seat," said Andy, seriously.

Donald reined in his eager horse as they emerged from the woods and an enchanting scene burst on his view.

"This blinkin' 'orse is . . .

Andy stopped as his gaze followed Donald's. Both sat spell-bound, and the others joined them quietly.

The panopry spread before them was singularly wild and impressive. Below them stretched a lake of emerald hue, rippled here and there, by occasional cat's-paws, but for the most part, placid enough to reflect the shores with mirror-like clearness. To their right lay an open valley, through which ran a crystal clear mountain stream, its banks fringed with willow, alder and blooming Labrador tea. A rustic bridge of logs crossed the rushing stream to a cluster of well-built log cabins that were fenced in by a palisade of cedar posts. Inside the enclosure a patch of freshly ploughed soil stood out rich and dark against the carpet of green.

Under the azure sky, dotted with fleecy clouds, a brilliantly white skyline of ice-covered mountains, whose peaks flashed in the setting sun, circled this beautiful mountain valley.

From below wafted the odours of an awakening earth. The sweet perfume of the broken-pepper and sticky buds of the balsam-fir, and birch-coloured mate swans along the shore in search of a safe place to nest. From the centre of the lake a loon sent out its weird cry, echoing and re-echoing from the wooded hills like wild demoniacal laughter. Government Not Contributing To Development Of Harbors and Seaplane Stations

George G. Wakeman, of Ottawa, inspecting the air search of Canada, in an address at the Dominion aviation conference on the development of harbors and seaplane stations, declared that the government does not intend to make any financial contribution to such works. He forecast, however, government action on the installation and maintenance of illumination apparatus necessary, not only in airports, but along airways.

"Therefore will not we fear."

Psalm xlii. 2.

I see the gern to the sunlight reach, And the nestlings know the old bird's song. I see the hare from the danger hide, And the stars through the pathless spaces ride; I do not see that they have a guide. His eyes for all who are eyes for the mole.

Attention goes to the rightful goal;

O God! I can trust to the human soul.—Charles G. Ames.

The providence of God, that cares for the universe as a whole, that takes it at the beginning and holds it to the consummation, that we cannot see or know, that we can only dimly guess,—this same mighty, all-grasping order of God's providence considers my affairs; not simply nations, not simply cities, not simply families, but you and me, the leaf on the tree, the bird that sings on the bough, the flower that springs out of the sod.—M. J. Savage.
